Notes on four folk songs collected by Ralph Vaughan Williams

The Full English

The Full English was a unique nationwide project unlocking hidden treasures of England’s cultural heritage by making over 58,000 original source documents from 12 major folk collectors available to the world via a ground-breaking nationwide digital archive and learning project. The project was led by the English Folk Dance and Song Society (EFDSS), funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund and in partnership with other cultural partners across England.

The Full English digital archive (www.vwml.org) continues to provide access to thousands of records detailing traditional folk songs, music, dances, customs and traditions that were collected from across the country. Some of these are known widely, others have lain dormant in notebooks and files within archives for decades.

The Full English learning programme worked across the country in 19 different schools including primary, secondary and special educational needs settings. It also worked with a range of cultural partners across England, organising community, family and adult learning events.

Supported by the National Lottery through the Heritage Lottery Fund, the National Folk Music Fund and The Folklore Society.

Notes on some folk songs collected by Ralph Vaughan Williams

These notes were originally prepared for a workshop delivered at Cecil Sharp House, London, on 16 October 2008 as part of Living Song – a folk song and composition project co-devised and delivered by the English Folk Dance and Song Society (EFDSS) and the Royal College of Music Junior Department (RDMJD).

From 1903 - 1926 the composer Vaughan Williams collected 810 folk songs (the majority collected 1903 – 1913). They were sung to him by singers in mainly rural locations across many counties of England. He recorded 20 of these songs onto wax phonograph cylinder – the rest via notation. He noted the words of only 237 of these songs (often only the first verse)
