The Factory Operatives Call on Humanity

The Full English

The Full English was a unique nationwide project unlocking hidden treasures of England’s cultural heritage by making over 58,000 original source documents from 12 major folk collectors available to the world via a ground-breaking nationwide digital archive and learning project. The project was led by the English Folk Dance and Song Society (EFDSS), funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund and in partnership with other cultural partners across England.

The Full English digital archive (www.vwml.org) continues to provide access to thousands of records detailing traditional folk songs, music, dances, customs and traditions that were collected from across the country. Some of these are known widely, others have lain dormant in notebooks and files within archives for decades.

The Full English learning programme worked across the country in 19 different schools including primary, secondary and special educational needs settings. It also worked with a range of cultural partners across England, organising community, family and adult learning events.

Supported by the National Lottery through the Heritage Lottery Fund, the National Folk Music Fund and The Folklore Society.

Introduction

This song comes from the Frank Kidson collection of folk material, and was published by J.O. Bebbington on a printed broadside (lyric sheet).

Caroline Price chose to arrange this song, and several others, as part of The Full English community event held at The Met, Bury in on 8 March 2014. Over 50 singers came together to learn material that originated from the North West, led by Caroline and the Stream of Sound youth chorus from Stourbridge.

Scores of the other songs Caroline arranged are available for free download at www.efdss.org/resourcebank

The Factory Operatives Call on Humanity

1. You working men of every station,
   High and low, of each degree,
   Behold, the proud oppressor's hand
   Has brought us to this misery.
   While sumptuous tables they have spread,
   In deep distress we have to roam.
   Our wives and children, they are starving
   In a sad dejected home.

2. With cheerful hearts we went each morning,
   To the factory did hie,
   The while, our hard and cruel masters
   In their downy beds did lie.
   Their coffers we have filled with gold,
   They laugh at our calamity:
   While in the streets, half clothed and starved,
   Our little children you may see.

3. Assist us in our righteous struggle
   Our cause should be close to your heart.
   For like us, you are unprotected
   From the proud oppressor's smart.
   We little thought, in days gone by,
   When fortune smiled on us with joy
   That men we placed in stately mansions
   Would our peaceful homes destroy.

4. The factory masters joined together
   For to bring our wages low,
   While we, with heart-felt supplications
   Begged of them to spare the blow.
   But they were deaf to every care
   That on humanity was cast:
   The factory doors were locked against us,
   To endure the winters' blast.

5. The factory lordling sits so easy:
   While us workers starve and pine:
   Reclining on his easy chair,
   His stores well-stocked with costly wine.
   Like Pharaoh in the days of old,
   He's hardened unto mercy's call.
   O free us from his iron grasp,
   That we his victims may not fall.
